EDITORIAL BRIEFS.

THE Watchman having elected Hancock, we presume it will shortly announce his cabinet appointments.

CHARLES FRANCIS ADAMS is very much alarmed over the fact that the "fraud" issue is rapidly losing ground not knowing what else to howl about in the coming campaign.

ONE of Tennessee's delegates, Congressman Whitthorne, probably took the proper view of Tilden when he remarked, "You may interpret his letter as that of one who is not dead but sleepeth."

CHARLES READ, the distinguished English novelist, has become a professed Christian and is a constant attendant at prayer meetings, Bible classes and public church service. His writings hereafter will partake of a different character than formerly.

THE cyclone which on the 14th instant passed over a portion of Central Indiana, was more serious in its effects than at first reported. Twenty-five persons were injured, some of them seriously, and property destroyed to the amount of about $150,000.

THE New York Sun says the Democracy is doomed to defeat, in not nominating Tilden. It says they will have to drop the "fraud" cry and go into the campaign without an issue. This is indeed sad, but the idea of a great party like the Democratic having nothing to depend upon or strengthen it in a Presidential campaign excepting the cry of fraud, is sadder still.

IT is said Secretary Evarts has laid before the Spanish minister the facts connected with the firing upon the American schooner Merritt by the Spanish man-of-war Nuncio. The act was a gross outrage, and the indignity to the flag such as could not be passed without notice. No trouble is likely to grow out of the affair, as a full apology will doubtless be forthcoming in due time from the Spanish government.

IT is an actual sact that some people won't see anything. If they see white, they will swear that it is black, and vice versa. Of this class are the people who refused to believe that Mr. Tilden was sincere when he wrote his letter of declination.—Watchman. And they refuse to believe it now. The fact is, Tilden's letter produced just the opposite effect in the convention from what its author had intended. In other words, instead of causing the convention to sympathize with him, it took him at his word and gently but firmly ruled him out.

A CAREFUL examination of the points thus far made in favor of a Democratic restoration, says the Tribune, reveals only one leading reason, namely, that a change is desirable. For what purpose? Simply and only to give the Democrats a chance to fill their stomachs at the public expense—stomachs wofully empty with the enforced fasting of twenty years. The country was never less anxious for a change. The present Administration suits it perfectly, and the Republican proposition is for the continuation of precisely that style of Government.

A Howling Democratic Ratification Meeting.

The Orvis-Curtin wing of the Democratic party had a limber-joint meeting on Saturday evening last, to ratify the nomination of Hancock and English. The effort to drum up recruits began several days before, but in the evening a procession of a lot of men and boys who carried seventy-two Greeley coal oil lamps —the number to commemorate the year of Greeley's triumph—strolled through the streets, trying to hurrah and to keep step to the music of a brass band.

The meeting was held in spots about the Court House yard. There was a Curtin-Orvis President, and Curtin-Orvis officers generally got into place. Major Forster, the Curtin-Orvis editor, read dispatches in a broken voice, from Democrats throughout the country who found it easier to write dispatches than to come to the meeting. The evening was warm and Major Forster had indulged so freely in ice water that his voice was chilled and his reading not the best, but the crowd hurrahed all the same.

Spangler, Alexander, Gen. Blair, and Gephart spoke their pieces, like nice little men, while the boys roamed round and shouted for Hancock and English, and for lager beer. Just what Spangler, Alexander, Blair and Gephart talked about nobody heard or cared; the crowd were instructed to howl for Hancock, Curtin and the Centre Democrat, and they did.

Hancock and English were unanimously elected, but there was a trifling hitch over Curtin, the Democratic Watchman, and the next Bellefonte post master, which couldn't be settled, when the president of the meeting called a halt in the scramble, because, he said, there was a man from Howard, of about his size, who wanted to go to the Legislature, and that must be settled first. This gave rise to great snorting and two men deliberately sneezed while Woodward was making known his wishes, but those men belonged to the Meek and Democratic Watchman wing of the party, and they were ordered to dry up.

As a Democratic meeting it was a great success, but as to its doing anything for Hancock and English it was a great failure. With the declaration of principles, that in time of peace whiskey was subordinate to lager beer, and that if a Democrat was not elected he was entitled to the office if he could get it, and would be seated, they gave a hideous howl and the bulk of the meeting were taken home in sections, upon window shutters and in wheelbarrows.

THE Cincinnati correspondent of the Pittsburgh Post explains how it came that Daniel Dougherty was selected to present the name of General Hancock to the convention. It was to straighten out that little matter about the hanging of Mrs. Surratt, for which many Catholics still entertain an unkindly feeling towards him. The correspondent says there was much comment about the nomination of Hancock by Daniel Dougherty, a Republican. The idea in bringing Daniel to the front was to meet objections of Catholics against Hancock in the Mrs. Surratt matter. General Hancock certainly has a good defense in that case if he needs any, but the notion was, Dougherty's endorsement would give him a still better defense. Dougherty is himself a Catholic. The only trouble is that he has generally advocated the cause of the Republican candidates, and has almost invariably voted for Republicans.

A PROMINENT Pittsburgh paper says Hancock will lose 50,000 Irish Catholic votes in New York because of the part he took in the hanging of Mrs. Surratt. There is no reason why he should, since he simply obeyed the orders of his superior officers; but the prejudice is too strong against him to be removed.

WASHINGTON.

Special Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 17, '80.

Quietness reigns supreme here to-day, notwithstanding Democracy in convention assembled is voting a Presidential candidate. There are no crowds around the bulletin boards, nor do the newsboys, usually so active on such occasions, evince much energy in crying out news from the convention. The apathy of Washingtonians is very significant, as also is their enthusiasm on any subject of national interest. The prevailing sentiment of the country finds voice here, and one can form a good idea of the direction of the current of political opinion by conversation with people who concentrate here from all over the nation. When the Chicago convention was in session all was excitement, and the election of the Garfield and Arthur ticket was considered certain by Washington prophets. They all believed the Democratic situation hopeless, and so take no interest in the proceedings of the convention. The feeling in Washington obtains throughout the country; in fact, the lack of enthusiasm, and the misty condition of the Democratic Presidential atmosphere, tend to make Republicans hopeful and Democrats hopeless. They will wear out their prominent men by long balloting, and will at last nominate some unknown politician. But Tilden received 38 votes on the first ballot, and all danger of his nomination is passed. Should he be the man, it will be equivalent to a declaration by the Democrats of inability to win the election by fair means, and a warning to Republicans to look out for fraud, tricks and all kinds of political thieving schemes.

Mexico's refusal to let our troops cross the border in pursuit of hostile Indians is rather ill advised, as Mexico by such action becomes responsible for these Indians, and for any damage they may hereafter do on United States soil. Of this course Mexico cannot complain, as the same policy was adhered to in the case of Sitting Bull and his hostile Sioux on Canadian soil. No fear of trouble is apprehended, as Mexico is very careful to avoid all causes for actual trouble wi h her neighbor.

Tammany got no recognition from the regular convention, and is consequently boiling over with wrath, and is making the air black with curses upon the convention. If John Kelly and his followers are Democrats, their aid to the Republican party in New York will be invaluable in the next election.

To the credit of General Logan it must be said that he never sulks and grumbles after he has made a hard fight and been beaten. He says he is going to take the stump for the Republican ticket, and has not the slightest doubt but that he can carry his own State with a large majority, besides doing missionary work in other States.

News has just been received here from Cincinnati announcing the nomination of General Hancock on the third ballot. What a smashing of slates, what fond hopes are crushed, never can be known. Poor Tilden!

PHIL.

THE iceberg encountered by the City of London, on the 16th inst., was of huge proportions—about fifteen hundred feet long and three hundred feet high, if the statement is to be believed. One showing a greater altitude above the sea was encountered by the same vessel in May, but it was only seven hundred feet long. Since the portion of a berg is seven times as great under water as above the surface, it follows that this one must have been about seventy-four hundred feet from top to bottom. The New York Herald says:

"The Gulf stream off the Newfoundland bank where this tall iceberg was observed is too superficial to float it, the warm current not being more than one hundred fathoms deep, so that about three-quarters of its submerged volume is under the impact of the flow of glacial water from the polar basin moving under and in a direction contrary to that of the Gulf stream. Thus propelled by an invisible submarine force the berg in question had ploughed its southerly way against wind and surface current to the forty-third parallel; and as the City of London reported it to be 'in compact form, which will take some months to disappear,' it will no doubt advance much further south in the track of vessels moving between our eastern ports and Europe, and possibly in the regular ship track from New York to Rio Janeiro, since the polar underflow which has it in tow tends far to the west of the Newfoundland meridians."

A BODY given up for dead was resuscitated at the morgue in New York the other day. How suggestive such a fact is in starting enquiry as to whether many corpses could not have been resuscitated which were buried if proper remedies had been adopted. It is now the fashion to freeze every dead body, or supposed dead body, as soon as breath has ceased. This is unquestionably a risk, and when instances like that of the babe at the New York morge come to light, a shudder may well run through every household that mourns a dead one. As a rule, we bury too soon, and as a matter of fact, enough evidence of actual death is not required before burial. These are certainly important things which are neglected, for some reason, too much in every direction.

SUMMARY OF THE NEWS.

NEW YORK, June 25.—At noon yesterday E. S. Mendell, Sr., one of the firm of E. S. Mendell, Sr. & Co., bankers and brokers at 15 Wall street, shot himself in the right temple with a revolver. He had been for ten years suffering with a complication of diseases, and in the last four years gave little attention to his business. Yesterday at breakfast he was in high spirits, and afterward he went to his son's office in Newark, where he chatted pleasantly on various topics. At noon he returned to his home, after wishing his son a pleasant excursion to Sheepshead Bay. He went to his bedroom, and was found half an hour afterward sitting dead in an arm chair. The revolver lay on the carpet near him. He had a happy home, and it is not known that he had any serious business troubles. He was 70 years old, and leaves a wife and seven children. He was born in Holland.

PITTSBURGH, June 25. — A few days ago the engineer of a freight train on the Pennsylvania railroad saw a man lying in a cluster of bushes near the track between Elizabeth and New Brunswick. The man was in a terrible condition, and his body was so emaciated that he was a mere skeleton. He was taken care of, and gave his name as Torrence McCune. He tells that he was taken ill while walking from Philadelphia, and that he crawled into the bushes to rest. He became so weak that he could not call or even signal for assistance, and he had been twelve days without food when he was discovered by the engineer. Dr. Mercer says he thinks the man cannot live.

PATTERSON, June 25.—At the trial of Patrick Dillon, liquor seller, on Wednesday afternoon, for violating the Excise law, an amusing story was related by the witnesses. On Sunday afternoon last Father Kilcen, the parish priest at Bayonne and Bergen Point, heard loud talking and laughter in Dillon's saloon. He entered through the side door, and discovered the proprietor and a party of friends drinking at the bar. When the revellers saw the priest they ran into a rear room, leaving him in possession of the premises. The priest had a heavy umbrella in his hand, and with it he proceeded to break every glass and bottle and decanter in the saloon. Then he went and made a complaint against Dillon. The defendant was fined $20 for selling liquor on Sunday.

NEW YORK, June 25.—Yesterday at Manhattan Beach, a gentleman with limited cash and plenty of hungry friends took a seat at dinner with his friends at the table of a first-class hotel. A joker sitting at the same table had dexterously placed a bill of fare of a third-rate restaurant before the young man, who noting the low prices ordered liberally. A scene ensued at the close of the meal, for in place of twenty cents for a beefsteak $1.50 has charged, and other things in proportion.

RED BANK, N. J., June 24.—A painful disaster befell a pleasure yachting party at Beacon Neck this morning. Upon attempting to tack, the boom struck a boy named Palmer, and he felt overboard. A panic ensued, the yacht, which was small, capsizing. Parties from the shore went to the assistance of those in the water, and succeeded in saving all of the party except a Miss McElrath, who immediately sank and was drowned. The body has not been recovered.

WASHINGTON, June 26.—The President arrived from Ohio this afternoon, and Governor Hartranft, who came in last evening, had an interview with him not long after. The Governor returned to Philadelphia this evening, and, in response to an inquiry just before his departure, said that nothing had been settled regarding his successor as postmaster. He will remain in the post office a few days longer probably, but it is understood a strong effort will be made to decide upon an appointment as early as possible, in order that the change may go into effect with the beginning of the fiscal year, the 1st of July. Gov. Hartranft was accompanied by James D. Bingham, and this has naturally given color to the report that his name is seriously considered in connection with the impending charge. At present, nothing is definitely settled about the matter.

DUBLIN, June 26.—At a meeting of the committee of the Mansion House Relief Fund yesterday it was announced that only £40 had been received since the last meeting. It was stated authoratively that the fund now afforded only three weeks' supply, and that eight weeks of intense distress had to be faced. The Bishops of the dioceses of Clonfert and Killalee, who presided over large districts in the West, declared that even if the harvest should be good, which is still uncertain, the troubles of the country will be only beginning, owing to the enormous debt which presses on the tenant farmers and the utter deadness of credit in every locality. Public works and poor law relief have been utterly broken down, and it is only to the charitable organizations that the people can look to be saved from famishing the next few months.

BRADFORD, June 26.— Last night three men, with blackened faces, entered the house of John Ellis, an aged farmer, living near Little Valley, New York. One of Ellis' daughters was gagged and the other compelled to show where the money was kept. The thieves secured $400 in currency, $2,000 in bonds, and other valuable papers. John Ellis offered resistance, and was struck on the head with a club and rendered insensible, in which condition he still remains. It is thought his injuries will prove fatal. Two neighbors, named David Brown and Thomgs Neale, have been arrested and are now in the Little Valley jail.

TROY, N. Y., June 26.—William Madden, a prominent citizen of this city, past grand master of the State Lodge of I. O. O. F., and at different times and for several years alderman, supervisor, coroner, fire commissioner and chief engineer of the fire department, died this morning in a fit of apoplexy. Coroner C. S. Woodruff, a prominent homeopathic physician, died this afternoon from an overdose of mandrake, taken to relieve pains. Mrs. Madden and Mrs. Woodruff are ignorant of the death of their husbands, having left Troy on an excursion to Overlook mountain, in the Catskills, and are beyond telegraphic communication.

STONINGTON, June 26.—Two bodies from the sunken Narragansett were picked up in the Sound yesterday, one believed to be that of Nicholas Donahue, of Providence, Rhode Island, and the second that of a little girl, which is as yet unidentified. The latter was floating west of Bartletts' Reef light boat. The bodies were brought here. Latest advices from the wreck to-day state that it has not yet been raised by the chains. The vessel will be prevented from settling further in the sand in any event.

GALENA, June 25.—General Grant this afternoon emphatically denied that he ever said he would support Hancock, or that he would vote for him. There is, consequently, no foundation whatever for the statement published in New York this morning that he had made use of any such expressions.

CANTON, O., June 26.—George W. Mann, G. A. Ohr and John Sommit were hanged here to-day. Mann and Ohr suffered death for the murder of John Watmough. The victim was an aged man residing in Philadelphia, but who had walked to Illinois to visit friends, and was returning the same way. John Sommit was a boy 17 years old, who had murdered Chris Spuhler, 16 years old, who was a witness against him in a trial for grand larceny. Much excitement was created. The Governor ordered five companies of military to preserve the peace. The execution was private. Death was instantaneous in the three cases.

NEW ORLEANS, June 26.—By the premature explosion of a cannon which was being fired in honor of the nomination of Hancock and English, a young man by the name of Charles O'Connor had his right hand torn off and his arm so badly fractured that amputation will be necessary.

PETROLIA, Pa., June 28.—Isaac Steele, a farmer, living near this place, made $100,000 in the oil production of his farm. He is an old man, and lives with his wife and daughter. He keeps no less than $50,000 in greenbacks in his house, and he has no faith in banks or any investment for money. Three years ago he had $100,000 in bank notes locked in boxes and trunks about his house. The money became damp, mildewed and mouldy. When he discovered the condition of his money he took the notes from their hiding places and spread them in the sun about his orchard to dry. The spectacle of a fortune lying loose on the ground among apple trees was witnessed by hundreds, who were attracted to the farm by the singular proceedings. The money was thus exposed for two days, guarded by old Steele, his wife and daughter and hired man. When considered in good condition again it was returned to the trunks and boxes. Three nights after the greenbacks were housed, Steele woke up to find three masked men in his bedroom. They bound the old man and his family, and had discovered and secured $1,000 of the hidden treasurer when they were frightened off by the return of the hired man from Petrolia. Even this experience did not move the old farmer to make a different disposition of his money. On the night of the 28th of April last his house was broken into by three men wearing masks. The old man and his wife fought them until they were rendered unconscious. In the struggle the masks were torn from the faces of two the men. They were recognized as James James and William McDonald. The third man had turned his attention to the daughter and was not known. The men began to search the house, but before they had secured any booty Steele's hired man had alarmed the neighbors, and the robbers fled. In an old box under Steele's bed there were $40,000 in greenbacks. The robbers were followed but escaped to the woods. Three days afterward the two were captured. They have just been sentenced to five years each in the penitentiary. Old Steele still refuses to select any safer place of deposit for his wealth than his own house.

A TRANSLATION FROM DUFRESNY.

Phillis, greedier far than tender,
Naught gaining by refusing, I wis,
One day exacted of Clitander
Thirty sheep for a single kiss.

On the next day the youth was gaining—
Prices had ta'en a downward leap,
He from the shepherdes was gaining
Thirty kisses for a single sheep.

On the next day Phillis, tenderer,
Fearing to be denied her bliss,
To the youth did gladly surrender her
Thirty muttons for one kiss.

Next day Phillis had been willing
To give both flock and sheep-dog large
For the one kiss she saw the villain
Give Lisette without any charge!

A Lesson in Astronomy.

Hi-diddle-diddle,
The Sun's in the middle,
And planets around him so grand
Are swinging in space,
Held forever in place
In the Zodiac girdle or band.

Hi-diddle-diddle,
The Sun's in the middle,
And Mercury next to the Sun;
While Venus so bright,
Seen at morning or night,
Comes second to join in the fun.

Hi-diddle-diddle,
The Sun's in the middle,
And third in the group is our Earth;
While Mars with his fire,
So warlike and dire,
Swings round to be counted the fourth.

Hi-diddle-diddle,
The Sun's in the middle,
While Jupiter's next after Mars;
And his four moons at night
Show the speed of the light;
Next golden-ringed Saturn appears.

Hi-diddle-diddle,
The Sun's in the middle,
After Saturn comes Uranus afar;
And his antics so queer,
Led Astronomers near
To old Neptune, who drives the last car.

Our Story Teller.

A CHARMING PICKPOCKET.

Miss Illione Howell sits on the top step of the back porch of the Pebble House, gazing out upon the river—blue as the sky above it, and almost as bright—which flows gently by at the foot of the garden.

Everything looks bright and clean this warm, pleasant, fragrant October day. The garden walks, formed of many small glittering stones, encircle the beds of autumn flowers and plots of feathery grass like broad gray ribbons thickly sown with precious gems; and the little summer and bath houses, built of some dark wood, and encrusted with more brilliant pebbles, gleam and glow through the trees at the water's edge, as the homes of the diamond gnomes must gleam and glow in the heart of the dark brown earth. Nor does the sheen and glitter with them for the Pebble House itself is decorated around each window and door—imbedded in some mysterious manner in the frames—with many-colored stones, each one sparkling bravely in pigmy mimicry of the setting sun.

But loveliest of all things that adorn this wonderful October day is the lady, young and fair, with golden hair, large blue eyes, pale oval face, and sweet small mouth, leaning back against one of the pillars of the Pebble House porch, the red foliage of the Virginia creeper that enrobes it drooping over her beautiful head. There is a tender, dreamy look in her large eyes, and a soft smile about her prettily curved lips, as she sits there so motionless gazing out upon the river. One can see at once that she is wandering in dream land; but she is doomed to be rudely recalled to earth again.

'Kleptomania, indeed!' said a loud girlish voice near me, and Miss Ada Warden, a little brunette with magnificent black eyes, comes suddenly out on the porch with her inseparable friend Linda Lees. 'Why do they never call it that when the—the—"

'Kleptomaniac,' drawls Linda, sitting in an easy chair and clasping her hands above her head with a generous yawn that indicated her weariness of the subject.

'Oh, thanks,' continues Ada, in the same loud voice, swinging her broad brim carelessly to and fro, 'kleptomaniac, to be sure, happens to be a poor wretch who steals a loaf of bread or something of that sort.'

'Don't look at me, Ada, dear," Miss Howell begs, in tones that would have delighted Shakspeare himself. "I'm sure I don't know," and she yawns too, as though a red rose had suddenly made up its mind to unfold into the smallest of red roses.

'Well, upon my word,' exclaims Ada, indignantly, looking from one of her friends to the other, 'you both appear to be in remarkable spirits this afternoon. I can't stand it. I must run away in search of some one less boisterous. No, I won't, either, for here comes Herbert Moore, my cousin of cousins, attended, prince of good fellows as he is, by slaves bearing iced sherbets and cakes of dew and honey—that is lemonade and maccaroons. Girls, ain't you glad I've got such a duck of a cousin, and that I coaxed him to spend his vacation here instead of at Newport? And now for his opinion on the subject.'

'What subject?' asked Herbert Moore. And then, without waiting for an answer, he turns to the lovely face inwreathed with the vine leaves and says, "May I sit at your feet, Miss Howell? I've been roaming, I've been roaming, and I'm deu— Beg pardon—awfully tired."

'Wouldn't you rest better in a chair?' and she leans forward, with a bright smile on her lips and in her eyes.

'Not at all, thank you,' seating himself a step or two below the lady.

'Mrs. Sherwood,' begins Ada, between the bites of macaroon.

'Oh, that affair of the diamond bracelet, poor thing,' says the young man.

'What do you believe in kleptomania?' drawls Linda, from her easy chair.

'That's the way they explain it,' Ada goes on. 'She has been an innocent picker up since her childhood. But Mr. Brown, the jeweler, with a heart as hard as his diamonds, threatened prosecution, and only consented to a compromise on condition that he should be allowed to warn his brethren of gems and gold. And so it all came out. Oh dear, what a shocking thing, especially when one remembers that the—the—'

'Kleptomaniac,' Linda again lazily suggests.

'More thanks, Linda love—that that the kleptomaniac came near being one of one's friends. Do say something, Herbert.'

'The most charming girl I ever met in my life,' Herbert responded, gravely, 'was a pickpocket.'

Miss Warden chokes with her lemonade, Miss Lee drops her hands from their favorite position above her head into her lap, with an echo of the word 'pickpocket,' and Miss Howell looks down on the young man with a questioning look in her lovely eyes.

'Tell us instantly, Herbert, that's a darling,' gasps Ada, and Herbert obeys.

"Last winter, coming home to my lodgings one night, just after parting with my old chum, George Cuthbert, Ada—'

Miss Warden, with a toss of her curly head, commands: 'Do not address yourself altogether to me, sir. It isn't polite.'

'Beg pardon,' said Herbert, mischievously, 'but for some reason or other I always think of you when I think of George. Well I had seen George off to Europe that afternoon after rooming together four years without quarreling. I wonder if that could be said of any two women?' He paused, but his audience maintained a dignified silence, then proceeded with his story. 'I naturally felt very lonely after this, and being unble to read, and in no humor to make calls, I determined to go to some place of amusement. It was a cold night, and as Jack Frost and I never had been on very friendly terms, in order to avoid a protracted struggle with him, I selected the nearest theatre, regardless of what the performance was to be. It chanced that they were playing a most dismal piece.'

'What was it?' asks Ada.

'Ada'—with great solemnity—'not for the world would I give any one, not even you, my gentle coz, a clew by which— Well, I was but just seated, when a most lovely girl, followed by her escort, a young man whose resemblance to her led me to believe him her brother, sank into the chair next to me.'

'What did she look like?' slyly questions Linda.

"Miss Lees, I must repeat the remark I made to my cousin a moment ago. No word or act of mine shall lead to the— Suffice it to say that she was lovely. The curtin rose as soon as she had taken her seat, and from that instant her attention was rivited upon the stage. I was pleased to notice, however, she did favor her companion with any gushing remarks about the handsome—'

'Who!' from Ada.

'No matter; and that she did not wear—'

'What?' from Linda.

'Either a bunch of violets or a Jacques rose. But I was not so well pleased to find that she seemed totally unconscious of my proximity, although she did accept a programme from my hand, in an absent minded sort of a way, while the young lady on the other side peeped coquettishly at me.'

'You conceited fellow!' exclaims his cousin.

'She did, upon my honor, from behind her fan, every few minutes, and at last gaining confidence, from the angelic expression of my countenance, no doubt, actually offered me a chocolate caramel.'

'Why, Mr. Moore!'

'She did, Miss Lees, and I took it and ate it. She was about six, I should think. However, to go with my story. In the third act, where there is some very pathetic business my charming neighbor began to weep, and reaching her little gray-kidded hand down by her side, took from the pocket of my coat my handkerchief—the last of that dozen of silk ones you brought me from Paris, Ada.'

'Not really. And what did you do?'

'Nothing. Yes, I did; I laughed silently and long, till the flirt of the fan and the chocolate caramel said to me, reproachfully: 'Why do you laugh? It isn't funny.' And I watched her at the end of the play walking away in the most dignified manner, after carefully putting my handkerchief in her polocoat, or whatever you call it, pocket.'

'"Twas all a mistake, you may depend upon it, Herbert. Last winter we wore our pockets so—so—'

Ada hesitates, and Linda, as usual, comes to her assistance. 'In our back breadths.'

'T-h-hat she— I mean no doubt your coat skirt was intruding upon the arm of her chair. And did you ever meet her again?'

'I did. And she immediately possessed herself in just such a guileless manner as she possessed herself of my handkerchief, of something belonging to me infinitely more valuable.'

'There's George and we promised to go sailing with him. Come, Linda,' shouted Ada, grasping her lazy friend by the arm; and as they ran down the steps she shouted back to her cousin: 'If there's any more, tell us us this evening, Herbert.'

'Is there any more, Miss Howell?' asks Mr. Moore, rising, and standing face to face with the blushing girl.

'Should there be more?' she asks in return.

'Yes. 'And she gave him her heart in place of her own, and promised to be his true and faithful wife.' Do you approve of that ending for my story?'

'That would be a happy conclusion, I'm sure,' laughs Illione. 'I can think of no better one, Herbert.'

And he draws her little hand within his arm, and they slowly walked off towards the river.

The Value of a Bride.

William Remsen, a Long Island expressman, sued his father-in-law, John Hay, for $10,000 damages, charging that Hay induced his wife to leave him three months after their marriage in 1875. Upon the trial Tuesday Remsen testified that he married Hay's daughter in Newark, New Jersey, after an acquaintance of two years. 'I liked her, and she seemed to like me,' he said. 'Her father didn't want his daughter to have any suitors, and neither he nor his wife attended the marriage. Everything passed off pleasantly, however, and she was my wife, was satisfied, and so was I. Three or four months afterward, when I was sick in bed, her mother came to her and she left my house. She came into the room where I was lying and in tears bade me goodby. Her mother must not see her crying, she said, or she would kill her. My wife has not lived with me since.'

Testimony was given that after the separation Mr. Hay began a suit for divorce on behalf of his daughter, in which the complaint was dismissed, and Mr. Struggles, a neighbor in Gravesend, testified that Mr. Remsen provided a pleasant and comfortable home for his wife, and that she told him she was never so happy as while living with her husband. Mr. Hay, when he spoke to him about Remsen, became greatly excited, and said he would shoot the d—d rascal for marrying his daughter.'

The defence is that the daughter came back to her father of her own accord, and without solicitation or improper inducement, having been driven from her husband by his cruel treatment. Mrs. Remsen sat by her father, apparently taking a lively interest interest in the proceedings. She is a very handsome woman, of the blonde type, but is said to be very fickle-minded. All the parties are wealthy.

The "Roil Bengal Tagger."

This is little Johnny's composition on the above named animal: "One time there was a man which had a tagger, and the tagger it was a sho, and the man he took the money for to git in. The man he had a big paper nailed onto the tagger's den, and the paper it said, the paper did, 'The Roil Bengal Tagger, sometimes called the Monnerk of the Jungle. Hands off. No Techin' the Tagger!' The monnerk of the jungle it was always a layin down with his noz between his poz, and the folkes which had paid to get in they was mad coz it wudn't wock and roar like thunder. But the sho man he said, 'That's ol rite when I git the new cage done, but that is the same cage which the offle feller broke out in Oregon time he et up them seventeen men and ther famles. Then the foks they wud of stand back and tock in whispers while the tagger slep. But one day a feller which was drunk he take to punchen the tagger with the masthed of his umbreller, which stampeed the oddience wild and the wimmin they stud into chairs and hollered like it was a mouse, but the drunk feller he still jobbed the monnerk of the jungle crewel. Pretty sune the monnerk it bellered offle and riggled, but the feller kept a pokin like he was fireman to a engine. Bimeby the monnerk of the jungle it jumped on its hind feet and shucked itself out of its hide and roled up its sleefs and spit on its hands and spoke up and said: "I can jest wollip the peagreen stuffin out the dasted galoot which has been a proddid this ere tagger!" And then the oddience they was astonished."

'Say, John,' said a local politician to a Fulton street Chinaman, the other day, 'are you naturalized?'

—The bush meeting now being held by the Desciples in Curtin township, is, we are informed, largely attended, and much interest is felt in the proceedings.

—This is the way the Norristown Herald looks at it: At the beginning of the present century there were three million copies of the Bible in existence; since then one hundred and sixteen millions more have been printed. —In addition to the army worm, which is attacking the wheat and corn crops in different parts of the State, another comes in the character of the grapevine louse. It is very destructive to the grapevines, and growers of this delicious fruit predict that that the crop will be a partial if not a total failure this year.

—Farmers are riding around over the county in search of harvest hands. A Pennsvalley farmer told us Wednesday that on account of the activity in iron manufacture farm help will be scarcer this season than for several years, and he expects to be obliged to pay good round weges in order to secure enough help to harvest his crop.

—The Newport, Perry county, Ledger, stated about three months ago an Irish Catholic named Thomas S. Kelley started in his bare feet to walk from Philadelphia to the monastery at Loretto, which he was doing for penance. Mr. Kelley reached his destination a couple of weeks ago. He is said to be a man of about forty years of age, of prepossessing appearance and well educated. It is said that he was quite wealthy, but gave his possessions to the church. He carried with him from Philadelphia a chalice of the value of about $150, and upon his arrival at Loretto presented it to the brotherhood. We understand it is the intention of Mr. Kelley to join the Franciscan Order and spend the remainder of his days at the monastery at Loretto.

English Heard From.

According to the Potter county Enterprise, English, the Caledonia murderer, is not yet out of the State. It says he spent two nights last week on the branch of the lower Sinnemahoning. He was well armed, had plenty of money, and was not at all backward about talking of the murder. He also showed the scar on the leg where the ball grazed when he was shot at as he was escaping from the scene of the murder. English stated that he had slept but one night, and said that he never would be taken alive. When he left he stated that he was going to Kettle Creek. English is well known both on the Sinnemahoning and Kettle Creek, and either he was on the Sinnemahoning last week or he has friends there who are endeavoring to shield him by putting officers on the wrong track.

A. M. E. Sunday-School Convention.

The annual convention of the A. M. E. Sunday-schools of this district, composed of the counties of Blair, Centre, Clinton, Lycoming and Mifflin, will assemble in the A. M. E. church of this place on Saturday, July 3d, and continue in session four days. Prominent speakers from abroad will be in attendance, and as all the counties will be fully represented, a large gathering of Sunday-school workers may be expected during the progress of the convention. Mr. George Skinner, superintendent of the school at this place, will deliver the welcoming address.

The Methodists on a "Spree."

The Methodist Sunday school picnic Thursday was very largely attended, many members of the other sabbath schools joining with the Methodists in their trip to the woods. So great was the crowd of children and others who desired to avail themselves of the opportunity for a feast and a frolic in the grove at the Intersection that it required four cars for transportation.

The day was warm and close in town and was particularly suited for a pleasure jaunt of this kind, as the cooling breezes which constantly blew through the woodlands were more fully appreciated.

The picnicers enjoyed themselves in various ways, some in playing croquet, and others in pitching quoits, and one other very popular game with which all were no doubt conversant called "eating." Altogether the day passed very pleasantly, and a "delightful time" was the verdict of all who attended.

Serious Accident.

Mr. Frank P. Blair, of this place, met with an unfortunate accident last Wednesday afternoon while engaged in shooting off cannon firecrackers. A crowd of people were collected about the bulletin board before his place of business to get the latest news from the Cincinnati convention, and Mr. Blair, for the purpose of having a little sport, went up on the balcony of the Brockerhoff House, from which position he dropped the crackers down into the crowd. But, as is often the case with such kind of sport, it resulted in disaster. Having lighted a fresh cracker he peered over the railing to see if everything was favorable below, and while in this posture the cracker exploded in his hand and being held near his head, his face was terribly burned and blackened, the flesh on the nose being badly lacerated. He was taken to his home on Spring street and a physician sent for to dress his wounds. The physicians say he will probably lose the use of one eye and possibly of both.

Milesburg Siftings.

Our merchants are displaying much taste in arranging their wares, and many of the store rooms have a very attractive appearance. They all sell cheap.

The National Hotel is having quite a run, the chief attraction being good eating and John, the prince of hostlers.

Sunday-school matters are worked up pretty sharply, and all the schools are gathering in new scholars. We learn that the Methodist school, for the past two months, has averaged 140, last Sunday 159, with the expectation of reaching 175 before the "boom" is over.

Mr. E. H. Carr, burgess and owner of the boss team of driving horses, has a new style door plate, telling where he lives.

Miss Clara Moore, one of the handsomest of our girls, is visiting her sister, Mrs. Weber, at Howard. Phie is not happy while she is away.

Dr. Mattern has the foundation laid for a new house, to be completed in the fall. VICTOR.

Hublersburg Notes.

Thomas Schantz, wife and son, of Ontario, Kansas, have returned here after a two months' visit to relatives in Bucks county.

On Wednesday night the son of a well-to-do farmer entered the stable of John Meyers, a poor, aged and infirm man, and took a calf away, belonging to Mr. Meyers. The lawless parties should be brought to justice.

The farmers have commenced harvesting. The wheat here is little over half a crop, and at the west end of the township the crop will not yield more than seed.

The enumerator reports the population of Hublersburg as 172.

To-day the select school taught by J. M. Zimmerman closes.

On Wednesday evening quite a number of young folks assembled at William P. Smith's and spent a few hours pleasantly in singing. IVAN.

Killed by a Falling Beam.

On Tuesday afternoon, June 2, while Mr. John Morton, of Curtins, Howard township, was assisting in repairing a barn on the premises of Mr. James Turner, he was struck on the head by a heavy stick of timber, and felled to the ground. He was removed to his home by his fellow-workmen in an unconscious state, and a physician summoned. Upon examination it was found that his skull was crushed in, and beyond making him as comfortable as possible, nothing could be be done for the unfortunate man. He died at midnight of the same day partially conscious. He leaves a wife and several children.

—Prof. Phillippi, formerly of this place, will make a balloon ascension from Lock Haven on Monday, July 5th, which day will be observed as the 4th in that city.

Is a sure cure for all the ordinary diseases of Horses, Cattle, Sheep and Swine. It cures and prevents Chicken Cholera. Your cow is certain to yield 25 per cent more and better milk and butter. Stock fattens on one-fourth less feed!

Being in possession of a large number of excellent testimonials, I subjoin a few:

I have been using your Cattle Powder for horses, cows, chickens and pigs, and find it a first class thing.—GEORGE BOND, Germantown, Pa.

Please send me half a gross of Cattle Powder. I have used two packs on my cow and chickens. The cow gave nearly twice the quantity of milk that she did before, and gave twice the amount of butter. My chickens were dying, but were cured immediately after I had used the powder. Yours truly, JONAS PASOUR, Dallas, N. C.

I have used and compared your Cattle Powder with all others, and must say it is the best for horses, cattle, sheep, hogs, &c. I have tried it on poultry for many complaints, with success in every case.—JONATHAN WEAVER, Berrysburg, Pa.

Last summer you sent me a pack of your powder which I gave to my poultry, and have not had one droopy turkey or chicken since.—MRS. WM. KNAPP, Orange, N. Y.

Send me a pack or two of your Cattle Powder. The pack I got from you last winter cured the chicken cholera. I gave some of it to a neighbor and it cured his chickens.—JOHN WILLIAMS, Spruce Vale, Ohio.

ELECTRIC BELTS.

For the cure of all nervous diseases without the least derangement of the patient's habits or daily occupation. This appliance exerts powerful and beneficial influence throughout the whole frame: is applicable to either sex, and affords instantaneous relief in the following diseases:

Rheumatism,
Neuralgia,
Dyspepsia,
Lumbago,
General Debility,
Headaches,
Dizziness,
Impotency,
Spermatorrhœa,
Sexual Exhaustion,
Self Abuse,
Premature Decay, &c.

These belts are the result of the profound research and experiment in Electro-Therapeutics, and by their peculiar construction, a continuous "galvanic current" is generated, which permeates the whole frame, and especially envelops the suffering parts with its gentle influence. This current assimilates closer to the nervous fluid than anything known to medical science—hence its potency as a curative agent.

Most especially is the application of electricity in this form beneficial to those disorders arising from youthful indiscretion, sexual excess, or dissipations of any kind, whereby the procreative powers are lessened and Impotency threatened. No false delicacy or sense of shame should prevent the sufferer, subject to restless nights, nightmare, dreams, palpitation of the heart, neuralgia, dimness of sight and other symptoms of nervous and physical debility, applying to the undersigned for relief.

These belts are light, perfectly flexible, and easily adjusted, all of which, together with their cheapness, renders them superior to any other form, for the application of electricity, medicinally.

☞ 50,147 of these belts were sold in Europe in the year 1876.

"Electricity is Life,"

And no remedy can be compared to it for the treatment of IMPOTENCE and loss of nervous vitality.

This belt is recommended by the most eminent physiologists of this country and Europe.

"Ingenious, wonderful—a deathblow to the old system of drugging."—London (Eng.) Lancet.

"You have perfected a great blessing on suffering humanity."—Dr. Richardson, London, England.

"Wonderful for the restoration of exhausted vitality."—Dr. Ferrier, London, England.

"I cheerfully recommend Dr. Hall's Electric Belt, and consider it one of the greatest blessings to mankind that has been put before the public."—Dr d'Barr, Paris, France.

Ayer's Hair Vigor,

FOR RESTORING GRAY HAIR TO ITS NATURAL VITALITY AND COLOR.

It is a most agreeable dressing, which is at once harmless and effectual, for preserving the hair. It restores, with the gloss and freshness of youth, faded or gray, light, and red hair, to a rich brown, or deep black, as may be desired. By its use thin hair is thickened, and baldness often though not always cured. It checks falling of the hair immediately, and causes a new growth in all cases where the glands are not decayed; while to brashy, weak, or otherwise diseased hair, it imparts vitality and strength, and renders it pliable.

The VIGOR cleanses the scalp, cures and prevents the formation of dandruff; and, by its cooling, stimulating, and soothing properties, it heals most if not all of the humors and diseases peculiar to the scalp, keeping it cool, clean, and soft, under which conditions diseases of the scalp and hair are impossible.

As a Dressing for Ladies' Hair, The VIGOR is incomparable. It is colorless, contains neither oil nor dye, and will not soil white cambric. It imparts an agreeable and lasting perfume, and as an article for the toilet it is economical and unsurpassed in its excellence.

—New Lanquedoc laces just received at Lyon & Co.'s.

—Two persons from a distance are spending the summer at Spring Mills, which induces the Reporter to remark that that place is booming up as a summer resort.

—The Swedes in Clearfield have been badly scared by the recent murder in that place, and are settling up their accounts and emigrating as fast as possible.

—Summer goods for gents in great variety at Lewins' Philadelphia branch store. His goods embrace everything in the line, and are of first-class material.

—General Brisbin and family returned from Snow Shoe Friday evening, where they have been sojourning a few days. The General left on the evening train for Philadelphia.

—Wilbur F. Cunningham, formerly of Huntingdon, with whom some of our citizens were acquainted, was accidentally shot and killed at Leadville, Col., on Sunday, the 20th inst.

—Two boys were recently arrested in Philipsburg and fined three dollars each for shooting off a revolver in a borough street. That's the way to deal with boys who carry revolvers.

—The ladies of the M. E. Church will hold an ice cream festival for the benefit of the Sunday-school, on Friday and Saturday evenings, July 9th and 10th, in the basement of the church.

—The Reading Times and Dispatch settles the Presidential matter in advance, and by the old rule of "8 to 7" thusly: Count the letters in each name — G-a-r-f-i-e-l-d, 8; H-a-n-c-o-c-k, 7.

—Between the army worm, the wire worm and some other kind of a worm, the name of which we do not recall to mind, the crops in the northern counties are suffering to a considerable extent.

—Mrs. John L. Lynn of this place, is away visiting at Milroy and Lewistown, in Mifflin county, and Lewisburg in Union county. We wish the lady a pleasant time among her many friends.

—Johnstown's military company was out for target practice at Cresson on Thursday last. Private Bolsinger won the first prize, although the captain of the company, who was not a contestant, made the highest score.

Eagleville Items.

We had a very interesting runaway on Friday last. W. Henry Orner was cultivating corn with a high-spirited horse, which took fright and ran furiously with the cultivator through the field, over fences and ravines, until it brought up in a deep gulch. No damage done, except a general scattering of cultivator and harness.

Alfred Graham is making an improvement by erecting a new picket fence around his lot and repairing hi house. Success to Al. We always expected he would come to some good.

The enterprising firm of Singer & Quigle have treated themselves to a beautiful broom rack, fixed on casters. It is ornamental as well as useful, and quite an improvement on the old style of keeping brooms in a barrel.

Gib got his blood up the other night and wanted to whip his uncle. Uncle cowed down and begged off, when Gib put his coat on and started for home, muttering, "Plague on all cowards."

One of our hitherto quiet citizens got under the influence of "O, be joyful," on Saturday night. We suppose he was in training for some circus, as he could stand in any way save the right one. His last and greatest attempt was an effort to stand on his head, but it was an inglorious failure.

Rev. Ridge hied away to the mountain side yesterday accompanied by his better half to visit a sick woman, they said, but in fact to tie a matrimonial noose for Mr. Aikey and Miss Wants. Success to them.

The entertainment at the Baptist church on Saturday evening was a splendid success. The pieces were well selected, so as to suit all tastes, and the rendering of the pieces were as a whole, well done. We cannot mention all the performers in this entertainment, but would make favorable mention of Misses Sadie Foresman, Sophia Stover, Clara Gardnar, Laura Foresman, Cora Snyder, and Messrs. John A. Crotzer, Charley Rothrock, Irvin Delong. Financially it was all that the most sanguine expected. The church and Sunday school feel under obligations to Prof. Harshberger for the able leadership he gave the affair.

Mr. Q. I. Kunes, one of our leading merchants, has erected a new Fairbanks scales in front of his store. These kind of fixtures are becoming quite popular here.

All moving pleasantly here; nature seems in a pleasant mood. Spring crops never looked better at this season of the year, and as we write we hear the clatter of reapers cutting down as good wheat as ever grew in the valley, with no grasshoppers or army worms to annoy us, for which we are thankful. LATROBE.

—On Thursday afternoon of last week, says the Clarion Republican, Mrs. Samuel Beales, of Beaver City, went from her new residence, recently built, to an old one near by, for the purpose of getting meat for the family supper. She did not return, and her long absence finally led the family to send a young daughter in search of her. She found her mother hanging in the house from a rope which had been tied around a rafter and a slip noose put about her neck. The woman's knees were bent and within six inches of the floor on which her feet rested. The knife and plate which she had taken to get the meat were at her side. There is no cause known for her committing such an act.

—The Clearfield Republican says that a beautiful dark bay horse, belonging to Mr. Wesley Bloom, of Pike township, Clearfield county, and valued at $250, while attached to a cultivator in his corn field on Tuesday, became frightened and began kicking, at each blow striking the iron of the implement, and continued doing so until his hind legs were completely mashed. The owner immediately procured a gun and shot the horse to end his misery. On the Saturday previous Professor Hamilton, of the New York circus, offered Mr. Bloom, at Curwensville, $225 for his horse, but the offer was not accepted.

—We are requested to copy the following from the Pittston Gazette on account of the friends of the deceased in this section: Joseph Dallinger, an inmate of the Ransom poor house, sent from Moosic, died Monday afternoon. He was about forty years of age. He formerly resided in Wyoming county, and went out with the first enlistment of volunteers from the county, serving through the rebellion in Co. B, 12th Pennsylvania Reserves. He will be pleasantly remembered by many old-time acquaintances for his genial, generous traits. He was his own worst enemy.

—Don't buy yourself a hat, necktie or anything in that line without calling on Samuel Lewins, at the Philadelphia branch. When you have examined his stock and priced the goods you will not go farther. He offers astonishing bargains to all.

Funeral of the late John S. Sommerville.

The funeral of the late John S. Sommerville, of Snow Shoe, Friday afternoon, was more largely attended than any that has taken place in Snow Shoe for several years, many friends of the deceased in Bellefonte and surrounding towns being in attendance. The funeral obsequies were conducted by Rev. Wright, of Milesburg, assisted by Revs. Laurie, of this place, and Lundy and Jackson, of Snow Shoe. The remains were brought to Bellefonte on the evening train for interment, accompanied by a large delegation from Snow Shoe, mostly composed of miners, by whom Mr. Sommerville was very much esteemed. On the arrival of the train at the depot the relatives and immediate friends of the deceased were furnished with carriages, which were in waiting, the miners and citizens generally forming in a body at the rear of the procession, and marching to the cemetery, where the last sad rites were performed.

—There was not near as much interest felt in town over the doings at Cincinnati as was manifest in the proceedings of the Chicago convention. Our most prominent Democrats remained in their offices attending to business, and left the lesser lights do the trotting around and street talking. The Democrats, with one or two exceptions, seemed to be well pleased with the nomination of Hancock, but beyond the usual sidewalk oratory, did not indulge in any demonstrative approval, not even three cheers for the nominee. However, we presume they will more than make up for the lack of enthusiasm displayed by a big ratification meeting one of these nights, on which occasion the stalwart leaders will, to use a western phrase, "throw themselves."

—An exchange says a little girl named Kennedy picked up and ate a piece of bologna which had been prepared to poison a dog in the Thirty-sixth ward, Pittsburgh, on Sunday afternoon, and will die from the efferts. A person who throws poisoned meat around in such a loose manner as this is little better than a criminal, and deserves to be prosecuted. Such carelessness should not go unpunished.

WATERLOO, Iowa., Jan. 25, 1879.

I was taken with an acute attack of rheumatism last fall, and confined to bed. At first employed a physician, without benefit, then sent to Wangler Bros.' drug store and obtained a bottle of St. Jacobs oil, the use of which soon gave me relief, and cured me of the attack. I can safely recommend it to all suffering with rheumatism.

Respectfully,
MATT. MCDERMOTT,
I. C. R. R. Shops.

—Grasshoppers are operating in Mifflin county, and the wheat growers of that section are becoming alarmed. We have not heard of late of any destruction to the crops of Centre county by this pest, although they were very numerous in several localities a few weeks ago.

—We learn that several ladies in town are searching, with fire in their eye, for the man who first gave out the report that there are 126 old maids in Bellefonte, and if he has an aunt living out of town anywhere we would advise him to go and visit her for a few weeks.

—The Star of Hope, of Williamsport, hoists a flag over the Prohibition nominations, and seems to imagine there are some hopes of electing the ticket. There is a fine opportunity for the Star of Hope to do some tall whistling between now and November.

—Commencement week at the College began Sunday with Baccalaureate Sermon by Rev. J. F. DeLong. His text was from Philippians, 3 chapter, 12th and 13th verses. Mr. J. M. Duncan delivered the address before the Y. M. C. A. of the College in the evening.

—An exchange says a ton of gold is worth $5,000,000. We don't hardly believe this, and as soon as we get home to-night we are going to count over our ton and see how it comes out. Possibly we are worth more money than we imagined we were.

—Mr. Ed. Speer returned home from Curwensville Friday with his left hand tied up in a rag. Upon investigation we learned that he had met with a slight accident in a planing mill, whereby two of his fingers were injured by a circular saw.

—Captain Vanvalin attempted to prove to some of his Democratic friends Friday that English, the Democratic nominee for Vice-President, was a Connecticut man, and it cost him just five dollars before he got through with it.

—Just received, the largest and handsomest stock of embroideries from 1c a yard up, at Lyon & Co.

Mark Twain on Blue Jays.

Mr. Mark Twain's two volumes of European travel entitled "The Tramp Abroad," contains his estimate of the blue jay. With his well-known proclivity for modesty the author presents this estimate in the words of a certain "Jim" Baker, a California miner:

"There's more to a blue jay than any other creature. He has got more moods and more different kinds of feelings than any other creature; and mind you, whatever a blue jay feels he can put into language. And no mere commonplace language, either; but rattling, out-and-out book talk—and bristling with metaphor, too—just bristling! And as for command of language—why you never see a blue jay get stuck for a word. No man ever did. They just boil out of him! And another thing I've noticed a good deal, there's no bird, or cow, or anything that uses as good grammar as a blue jay. You may say a cat uses good grammar. Well, a cat does—but you let a cat get to pulling fur with another cat on a shed nights, and you'll hear grammar that will give you the lockjaw. Ignorant people think it's the noise which fighting cats make that is so aggravating; but it ain't so; it's the sickening grammar they use. Now, I've never heard a jay use bad grammar but very seldom; and when they do they are as ashamed as a human; they shut right down and leave.

You may call a jay a bird. Well, so he is, in a measure—because he's got feathers on him and don't belong to no church; but otherwise he is just as much human as you be. And I'll tell you for why. A jay's gifts and instincts and feelings and interests the whole ground. A jay hasn't got any more principle than a Congressman. A jay will lie, a jay will steal, a jay will deceive, a jay will betray, and four times out of five a jay will go back on his solemnest promise. The sacredness of an obligation is a thing that you can't cram into no blue jay's head. Now on top of all this there's another thing; a jay can outswear any gentleman in the mines. You think a cat can swear. Well, a cat can; but you give a blue jay a subject that calls for his reserve powers, and where is your cat? Don't talk to me—I know too much about this thing. And there's yet another thing; in the one little particular of scolding—a blue jay can lay over anything, human or divine. Yes, sir, a jay is everything that a man is. A jay can cry, a jay can laugh, a jay can feel shame, a jay can reason and plan and discuss, a jay likes gossip and scandal, a jay has got a sense of humor, a jay knows when he is an ass just as well as you do—maybe better. If a jay ain't human, he'd better take in his sign, that's all.

Snags' Corners.

The officials of a Michigan railroad now being extended were waited upon the other day by a person from the pine woods and sand hills who announced himself as Mr. Snags, and who wanted to know if it could be possible that the proposed line was not to come any nearer than three miles to the hamlet named in his honor.

'Is Snags' Corners a place of much importance?' asked the President.

'Is it? Well, I should say it was! We made over a ton of maple sugar there last spring.'

'Does business flourish there?'

'Flourish? Why, business is on the gallop there every minute in the whole twenty-four hours. We had three false alarms of fire there in one week. How's that for a town which is to be left three miles off your railroad?'

Being asked to give the names of the business houses he scratched his head for awhile and then replied:

'Well, there's me to start on. I run a big store, own eight yoke of oxen, and shall soon have a dam and a saw mill. Then there's a blacksmith shop, a post office, a doctor, and last week over half a dozen patent right men passed through there. In one brief year we've increased from a squatter and two dogs to our present standing, and we'll have a lawyer there before long.'

'I'm afraid we won't be able to come any nearer the Corners than present survey,' finally remarked the President.

'You won't! It can't be possible that you mean to skip a growing place like Snags' Corners!'

'I think we'll have to.'

'Wouldn't come if I'd clear you out a place in the store for a ticket office?'

'I don't see how we could.'

'Maybe I'd subscribe $25,' continued the delegate.

'No, we cannot change.'

'Can't do it nohow?'

'No.'

'Very well,' said Mr. Snags as he put on his hat. 'If this ere railroad thinks it can stunt or cripple Snags' Corners by leaving it out in the cold it has made a big mistake. Before I leave town to-day I'm going to buy a windmill and a melodeon, and your old locomotives may toot and be hanged, sir—yes, sir, toot and be hanged!'

Why Are You Bilious?

Because you have allowed your bowels to become costive, and liver torpid. Use Kidney-Wort to produce a free state of the bowels, and it will stimulate the liver to proper action, cleanse the skin of its yellowness, cure bilious headache, and cause new life in the blood. Druggists have it.

Pen Pictures of the Delegates.

A Cincinnati correspondent good-naturedly pictures the more prominent members of the Pennsylvania delegation, as they appear in their seats in the convention:

The bright, youthful face of Malcolm Hay, crowned with his wealth of silvered hair, was radiant with smiles as he took his place of command at the head of the wayward Keystone politicians.

Cassidy flanked him on the left, wearing portentious clouds upon his brow.

In front of him sat Scott, the Tilden leader of the delegation since Randall dropped out of both the Tilden pew and the McMullen seat that he was to fill. His quick, nervous temperament was ever asserting itself in his restless flitting about among his many acquaintances, with now and then a quiet whisper to a New Yorker across the aisle.

Near him were the boyish features of Stenger and the keen eyes of Speer, illumining a face that has all the happy attributes of youth. They with Cassidy, compose the intellectual trio of the delegation.

Beside them were Senators Ermentrout and Crawford and ex-Representative Ellis shove out from the centre of the Pennsylvania block, and the healthy country complexions of Chauncy Black and Hensel were displayed on the far left.

Josephs, the ex-statesman, hugged close to Cassidy.

McMullen's face beamed with pride as he thought of Randall and the White House.

A Terrible Death.

The following story comes from Magdenburg, Germany, to the New York Herald:

A little girl wandered into a burying ground, which is under the charge of the chief sexton, and plucked a flower from one of the graves, unconscious of offence. The sexton caught her in the act and determined to inflict a punishment which would effectually deter her from despoiling his graves in the future. So he dragged the terror-stricken child away to the dead house, in which four corpses were lying on biers, thrust her in, locked the door and went about his business.

It was already late in the day, and the sexton, according to his own account, having finished his work, forgot all about his tiny prisoner incarcerated in the charnal house, and made fast the cemetery gates for the night. Next morning, returning to work at the usual hour, it suddenly occurred to him that he had neglected to let the child out of the dead house before going home. He hastened to unlock the door, when a shocking spectacle met his gaze. Crouched in a corner, with glassy eyes fixed in a death stare of horror, and blood-stained lips, bitten entirely through and through in convulsive agony, was a fifth corpse, that of his unfortunate victim. The helpless child had been literally frightened to death.

"Mr. Henry!"

As an illustration of how the simple are used by politicians, the following anecdote is interesting:

At a political meeting, the speakers and audience were very much disturbed by a man who constantly called for Mr. Henry. When a new speaker came on the stand, the man bawled out—

'Mr. Henry! Henry! Henry! I call for Mr. Henry!'

After several interruptions of this kind at each speech, a young man ascended the platform, and was soon airing his eloquence in magnificent style, when the same man as before was heard bawling out at the top of his voice—

'Mr. Henry! Henry! Henry! I call for Mr. Henry to make us a speech!'

The chairman arose and remarked that it would oblige the audience if the gentleman would refrain from further calling from Mr. Henry, as that gentleman was now speaking.

'Is that Mr. Henry?' said the disturber of the meeting. 'That can't be Mr. Henry! Why, that's the little fellow that told me to holler!'

Why they Blushed.

A rather amusing incident occurred at a church prayer meeting at Westfield a few evenings since. Near the front sat a young couple who are quite devoted to each other and soon to be married. The good deacon leading the meeting took for his topic "Love," and, growing warm with the subject, said:

"Brothers and sisters, all around us can be seen the fruits of love; aye, right before us 'tis seen in all it's godlike beauty and tenderness."

Unconsciously the speaker was pointing directly to the before-mentioned couple, and while the young woman tried to hide her blushes and her companion to look unconcerned the audience smiled, the deacon grew embarrassed, and it was some time before people's thoughts were tuned down to their usual placidity.

The Reason Why.

The tonic effect of Kidney-Wort is produced by its purifying and cleansing action on the blood. Where there is a gravelly deposit in the urine, or milky, ropy urine from disordered kidneys, it cures without fail. Constipation and piles readily yield to its cathartic and healing power.

Warm Weather and its Effects.

Many people, especially ladies, complain at this season of the year of a general weakness or debility. The use of Speer's Port Grape Wine prevents this. The wine is said to have a most wonderful effect in giving strength, vigor and tone to the whole system. It is extensively used by ladies nursing, or about to nurse infants. This wine is not a manufactured article—no liquor is added to it. It is no patent medicine or cordial humbug, but is a superior wine of the Oporto grape. It is a pure, old, unadulterated wine, nothing more or less. Mr. Speer has been supplying hospitals with his wine for many years past. It is said to be unsurpassed for summer complaints, and for weakly persons. The price is low for so excellent a wine, and no family need be without it. J. Zeller & Son has it for sale.

A burglar declared on his trial that he had entered the man's house for the purpose of robbing, but that he was innocent of any intention to stain his hands with his blood. 'But suppose,' said the judge, 'that he called for the police or attempted to defend his property?' 'Oh, that is different,' replied the cracksman. 'If he began the row it would be another thing, and I should use my shooter.'

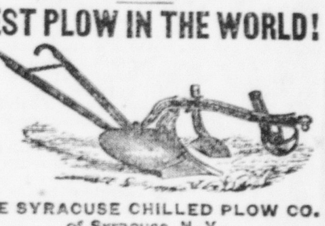
A NEW DEPARTURE!

BEST PLOW IN THE WORLD!



THE SYRACUSE CHILLED PLOW CO.
of Syracuse, N. Y.

Are now putting on the market a Plow that is as much superior to any Plow heretofore made as the Plows of the past few years have been superior to those made half a century ago.

It combines all the excellencies of any Plow in use.

It obviates all the objections made to any other Plow.

In addition it embraces several new features of the greatest value, for which we have obtained exclusive Patents.

Its Beam, Clevis, Jointer Standard and Wheel Standard will be STEEL, and its mold board will be a composition of Steel and Iron chilled under a process for which we have also obtained an exclusive Patent. It will be called

THE SYRACUSE CHILLED STEEL PLOW

Its weight will be eighteen pounds less than our present styles.

A first-class Steel Plow, made in the ordinary way, full rigged, retails for twenty-two dollars. Inferior Steel Plows retail from sixteen to nineteen dollars.

The price of our new Plow will be but Seventeen Dollars, and it will be the cheapest Agricultural Implement ever sold.

Its mold board will outwear three of the very best kinds of the ordinary steel mold boards.

It will scour in soils where all steel plows and all other plows have hitherto proved a failure.

With this Plow will be introduced a corrugated Plow Point and Jointer Point, on which we have also obtained a Patent, and which is also a great improvement, both as regards strength and wear.

The Jointer can be shifted so as to take more or less land, and also more or less pitch, and it can always be kept on a line with the Plow.

The wheel will run under the beam or one side of it as desired, and always kept in line.

The beam is adjustable for Spring or Fall Plowing, and also for two or three horses.

The handles can be adjusted to accommodate a man or boy, on the same Plow.

It is a perfect Plow.

Wooden beams are going out of use because they shrink, swell and warp, and never run two seasons alike.

Iron beams are too heavy.

Malleable beams become demoralized and bend, which is much worse than to break.

A Steel beam is the necessity of the day. It is three times as strong and very much lighter than any other style.

When we say a Mold board is chilled, the farmers know it is so.

We do not palm off on them a composition of various metals and call it chilled metal.

We want agents for this new Plow in every town in this State.

We can give but a very small discount to them, but we will pay the Railroad Freight.

We propose to place this Plow in the hands of Farmers as near the cost of manufacture as possible.

It will be the best Agricultural Implement ever sold.

It shall also be the cheapest.

Persons therefore who are not willing to act as agents on the principle that "a nimble sixpence is better than a slow shilling," need not apply for an agency.

No Plows on commission. All sales absolute.

☞ This is the only Steel Chilled Plow in the World.

Steel costs several times more than Iron.

But this Plow, full rigged, by giving small discounts, can be sold for Seventeen Dollars. Compare this price with that of any Iron Plow ever made.

It is cheaper than any other Plow now made would be at five dollars and a half.

Where there are no agents we will, on receipt of Seventeen Dollars, send a Plow to any Railroad station in the State and pay the freight. Address,

PROBABLY the largest day's exportation of grain on record was from New York on the 18th, when 692,000 bushels of wheat and 325,000 bushels of corn were shipped.

THE stock markets of both New York and Philadelphia are comparatively dull and weak. The approach of the warm weather and the holiday season has taken the stiffening out of speculators.

THE two hundredth anniversary of the landing of William Penn on the soil of Pennsylvania is to be celebrated in becoming style, at the proper time, in 1882. An association with Colonel John W. Forney at its head, has the matter in charge.

SINCE the second report of a board of naval inspectors condemning the Arctic vessel Gulnare, it has been realized that someting must be done for her, and on Sunday she got another coat of paint. Now her friends think she is all right for her voyage.

AFTER all, the Seekonk regatta only resulted in the victory, not of the favorite Canadian, but of another Canadian. It is usually the case that the champion sculler is either one Canadian or another, and the object of regattas is largely to determine, at any given time, which Canadian.

THE Savanna Recorder predicts various and sundry political revolutions during the next twenty years, and out of them will come that idol of the southern heart, a "Southern Republic." It says: In our opinion the year 1900 will see several Republics, viz: A Pacific republic, a Western republic, a Southern republic, a New England republic and a Northern republic, with New York city as a free city.

CAPTAIN YOUNG, of the ill-fated Narragansett, who so astonished the Rev. Mr. Harcourt, of Jersey City, during his discourse last Sunday, on the Sound disaster, and who was arrested for disturbing the pastor and his congregation, has been discharged by the magistrate before whom the complaint was made. Mr. Harcourt, it will be remembered, announced in advance his intention to "improve the lesson of the disaster," and Captain Young deemed it his privilege to attend and hear what was said. Whether any one in the congregation knew of his presence does not appear, but before the minister concluded he discovered the fact. When he declared, in bold and unequivocal terms, as though conscious that all would approve, "the captain and crew of the Narragansett were cowards," the gruff captain arose and indignantly said, "That is a lie, and you are a blackguard." Doubtless the captain was in the wrong in jumping up and interrupting the services in that savage manner; but the pastor was not without blame in making such a direct and positive charge against the captain and his crew in advance of any official investigation, and in the absence of any personal knowledge on the subject.

THOSE who travel by steamer on the Sound during the summer season will not feel particularly assured as to their safety on learning from experienced captains and pilots that what happened the Narragansett might occur to any other steamer on any dark and foggy night. They give various reasons why just such collisions are unavoidable at times. There are conditions of the atmosphere even during calm weather when the signal whistles cannot be heard until the boats are very close together. At other times, when it is very windy, the whistles of boats to the leeward cannot be heard, and in such cases the boats that do hear are relied on to keep out of the way of those that do not hear. The utmost care may not avail against accidents under certain circumstances, and escape is often more a matter of good luck than anything else. There is always a risk in fogs and storms, and there are times when no signals are of any avail. It is one of the strange characteristics of human nature, however, to take all risks in traveling, and trust to luck in getting safely to the journey's end. If the facts above recited were placarded conspicuously in every stateroom in every steamer, it would materially lessen the number traveling by the Sound. One of the old captains, when asked if the late calamity would not materially lessen the number of passengers by steamer, replied that it would for a short time but that travel would soon assume its usual proportions. This is the common experience everywhere. To the great mass of people the memory of such casualties are short lived, and where they result from sheer carelessness the lesson is soon lost upon those whose duty it is to guard against them.

Business Points and Prospects.

The most prominent feature of the business situation is the excitement and advance in petroleum. That most volatile of all staples, in a commercial as well as material sense, has never displayed its independence of ordinary commercial influences more than during the past six months. While all other staples were booming the oil market remained inert and depressed. When the reaction in iron, glass and agricultural products carried prices back toward the former level, the petroleum market began to recover from its depression, until this week the upward movement has shaped itself after the pattern of an old-fashioned bull campaign. How far the influences which have started the price of oil upwards are adequate, it is hardly the province of this article to discuss. It is a reasonable view to take of the matter, that prices are abnormally low and, the limits of production in the Bradford region being more clearly defined, that a more healthy level of values will be attained. If this is all that is done it will be better for the real interests of the trade, than to have prices rushed up to extreme figures from which a reaction will be the inevitable result.

In other branches of business, affairs retain their wonted aspect at this season. It is safe to say that the iron market has, to a great degree, recovered from the prostration which followed the decline. While the entire trade is held in abeyance until after the 1st of July, there is every reason to believe that within a month a moderate and healthy movement will be in operation throughout the iron trade. The glass trade is naturally in a state of suspended animation at this season of the year, while other manufacturers, together with the general wholesale interests of the city, are enjoying a more active trade than is usual with them during the early summer.

The easiness of the money market is a prominent characteristic of the business situation, not only here but elsewhere. Surprise was felt during the early part of the year at the persistent stringency of the New York market. Notwithstanding the addition of nearly a hundred million dollars to the banking resources of the country by importation and home production of specie, the New York banks had so much trouble in keeping their reserves up to the legal minimum that they were compelled to contract their loans. Whether the reaction in stocks and staples was the result of this contraction or vice versa, is hardly to be determined, as a mutual influence was probably exerted. At all events an opposite policy to that of over-speculation has been adopted, and since the 1st of April the New York reserves have risen until they are $51,000,000 in excess of what they were last year. From uniform experience it is likely to continue to increase about ten millions more before the fall movements of currency set in. The only thing which can disturb the great monetary abundance at New York is the possibility of specie exports; and that becomes daily more remote. While the merchandise imports at New York were constantly exceeding the produce imports, it seemed likely that some of our specie must go. Of late the character of this movement has changed. The merchandise imports have shrunk to moderate amounts, while the produce exports have grown into the largest volume for the past two weeks ever known. Beside these considerations the fact that the decline in prices diminishes the demand for loans, makes all the current and prospective indications favor the existence of an easy money market during the last half of 1880. Commercial-Gazette.

IT is understood in Washington that Senator Cameron has reconsidered his refusal to accept the chairmanship of the National Committee and holds the matter under advisement. Senator Logan, now in New York, and Senator Cameron will have a conference with Senator Conkling relative to the chairmanship before any conclusion is reached.

SUMMARY OF THE NEWS.

BRADFORD, Pa., June 22.—Charles Heinman came to this country from Germany fifteen years ago. He went to Pittsburgh and apprenticed himself to a jewelry firm. Becoming a journeyman in the establishment, he eight years ago married a daughter of the senior member of the firm. Two years ago Heinman's father-in-law died, and left a large sum of money to his daughter. This was to go to her children in case any survived her. No provision was made in the will as to the reversion of the legacy to the family in case none of the children lived to maturity. Last January Mrs. Heinman died. A few days before her death one of her children died. Five children survived her. Before the close of January two of these died. Heinman in none of the cases would allow a physician to be called in to visit his family. Last Friday another of his children died. His mother-in-law, Mrs. Reinemman, demanded that an investigation should be made. She charged that Heinman was making away with his family in the hope of coming into the property under the will. The funeral of the child was stopped by officers on the way to the cemetery, and the body brought back to the house. The stomach of the child has been sent away for chemical analysis, and the guardian of the two remaining children has applied to the Orphans' Court to be given custody of them. No proceedings will be taken against Heinman until the result of the chemical analysis is announced.

Heinman is very much depressed since this action, and it is generally believed he is guilty of poisoning his family.

NEW YORK, June 22.—Thomas Cooper, aged 28, of 162 Clymer street, Brooklyn, yesterday morning committed suicide by shooting himself through the heart in the cellar of his father's clothing store at 101 Broadway. He had a wife and a small son. For some time his health has been poor and he had been traveling. He lately returned from the White Mountains and was expecting to soon make another trip. His friends, observing a slight mental derangement, endeavored to occupy his mind in such a way as to restore its powers. On Saturday he took a drive with his little son, and on Sunday he smoked and talked and seemed to be in good spirits. At about eight o'clock yesterday morning he went from the company of his brothers into the cellar of his father's store and shot himself dead.

HARTFORD, June 22.—John and Henry Triehicknan, brothers, of Cornwall, Litchfield county, Conn., returning home from Cornwall village, when half a mile from home, about 10 o'clock at night, were fired at from an abush and both hit. John, who was fatally wounded in the abdomen, is reported to be dead. Henry was fatally wounded in the neck. A man named Chagnot, who lived in the neighborhood, has been arrested on suspicion. The two boys had been in Cornwall to hear a concert.

NEW YORK, June 22.—An unknown man, about 40 years of age, 6 feet 4 inches in height, with sandy hair and side whiskers, and wearing a brown jumper and gray pantalons jumped overboard last night from the Catherine ferryboat Republic, while crossing the river to Brooklyn, and was drowned. His black felt hat was left on the deck of the boat.

ROCHESTER, June 22.—The cases against Mayor Cornelius B. Parsons, Republican, and Police Commissioners Zimmer and Daniels, who were indicted a year ago last March for criminally neglecting to enforce the excise laws, have at length come to trial before the court of oyer and terminer in this city. After a long preliminary examination a jury was empannelled this afternoon to try the cases, and at six o'clock an adjournment was taken until to-morrow morning. There is a great local interest in the cases, as the liquor men re-elected Parsons by a large majority last spring on account of his prosecution by leading Rochester clergymen who procured his indictment, and now appear in court as witnesses against him.

ATLANTA, Ga., June 22.—Abner Gibson, Mason's one-armed desperado, who two years ago killed French Coleman, the well-known showman, and was acquitted by a packed jury, yesterday fatally stabbed Mr. Walshire, proprietor of the National Hotel, who had refused to furnish Gibson with a room. After his arrest, and while going to jail with an officer, Gibson attempted to cut the officer with a knife which he had concealed in his shirt.

TORONTO, June 22.—Dr. Thornburn examined Hanlan this morning and found that he is not permanently injured. His illness arose from overwork, and the doctor prescribes absolute rest from rowing for several months. Hanlan will be able to go to England and train for the Trickett match.

BROOKLYN, June 23.—Mr. Holderbach, an upholsterer, of 71 Leonard street, who has a wife and several children, on Monday eloped with Mrs. Mary Haas, of Boerum street, who has a husband and two children. Among the German population population of the Sixteenth ward their flight has caused much gossip, as both were well known. Mrs. Haas told her neighbors that she was going to Pennsylvania to live. An express took away two trunks and then drove up to Holderbach's residence and took in two trunks, a sewing machine and a bed. The couple then followed. When Mrs. Holderbach found what had occurred she was very much excited, and by constable's aid she recovered her husband's property. Mr. Haas simply said, "Let her go."

BALTIMORE, June 22.—Prof. John Aloysius Gillespie, of the society of Jesus, professor of languages and mathematics at Loyola College, in this city, was drowned yesterday while bathing in the Patapsco, near the city limit. A part of professors and students of the college had gone on an excursion down the river, and while bathing Professor Gillespie was seized with apploplexy. He was a native of Boston, and 22 years of age.

TROY, June 22.—Lizzie Carroll, aged 18 years, was bitten on the lip by a black spider on Thursday last, and is dying at the Sisters' Hospital from the effects of the poison.

BRADFORD, June 23.—Last month Robert Allison of Washington twp., Indiana county, quarreled with his son John. During the alteration the son assaulted the father. He was arrested and committed to jail. Subsequently he went to his father's house, called him out and shot him dead with a revolver. The parricide was secured and the revolver found in his boot leg.

NORTH ADAMS, Mass., June 23.—There no longer is any doubt that the cause of epidemic is impure water Twenty new cases, besides many relapses, have been reported to-day.

MILAN, June 24.—During the examination here yesterday of Gen. Boet, charged with the theft of Don Carlo's Golden Fleece Collar, he declared that at a meeting in Paris of the Duke de Caserta, Gen. Charette, Francis II. of Naples, and Don Carlo, the latter stated that, having inherited from the Duke of Modena the Collar of the Golden Fleece, which was worth a million francs, he had sold it in order to devote the proceeds to the furtherance of the Neapolitan cause. General Boet maintained that it was necessary that Don Carlos should appear as a witness. The Public Prosecutor replied that Don Carlos had been summoned to appear on the 25th inst. Count de Chamberd has sent a representative to Milin.

LONDON, June 24.—A despatch dated Buenos Ayres, Monday evening, says: A battle is in progress in the suburbs. A commercial crisis has occurred. Later telegrams from Buenos Ayres says that there has been fighting during three consecutive days; that the national army up to last night had been unable to force its way into the city.

MILWAUKEE, June 24.—While Herbert Sherman, aged 12 years, was returning from school yesterday afternoon, he was induced to get into a buggy in which there were two men, who tied his hands, blindfolded him and drove rapidly away. When about thirteen miles from the city he jumped from the buggy, notwithstanding their threats to kill him, and a farmer coming to his rescue, he escaped. The men escaped, but detectives are on their track. The boy's parents are wealthy, and the kidnapping was doubtless for the purpose of securing a reward for his return.

NEW YORK, June 24.—A libel and complaint was filed yesterday against the steamboat Grand Republic, her engines, boiler, tackle and furniture, and against all persons lawfully intervening in their interest therein in a case of collision, civil and maritime, before the United Statas District Court. The libellants are Joseph Martin, Jacob Kappell and John Butler, owners of the steamboat Adelaide, who claim thirty thousand dollars for the loss of their vessel on Saturday night. The libel recites, in conclusion, that the Grand Republic had no lights suspended or burning at, or immediately previous to the collison. An attachment was issued.

NORTH ADAMS, Mass., June 25.—Yesterday in the Hoosac Tunnel the timber and upper flooring in the central shaft gave way, precipitating a large quantity of timber and such fragments of rock as had collected on it for the last five years. Fortunately no men were in the tunnel, and no trains were passing at the time. The trains were delayed only about four hours.

Burdette to Thomas.

The oboe resembles a clarionet very much as a rake resembles a hoe, all the difference is at one end. The voice of the oboe is very much like that of a man trying to whistle with his head under water. The orchestral composers use the oboe on account of its simple, honest quality to express a countryman going into a bank and asking the banker to lend him $200 until Tilden is elected. In Jacobini's beautiful creation, "Sounds from the Kitchen," you will remember that oboes are used to convey the remarks that pass between the cook and the grocer's boy, who had just brought home two gallons of maple syrup in a one gallon kerosene can, and vice versa. The candid astonishment of the cook infuses the soul of the listener, while the efforts of the grocer's boy to explain away the apparent discrepancy between the quantity of syrup and the size of the can is beautifully and touchingly conveyed. The bassoon is made of wood, and the complete instrument is probably worth eight dollars a cord. It looked like a pump log, and is played by blowing into a silver stem that winds into the side of the tube. When the bassoon is not in use in the orchestra, it can be utilized as the clothesprop. It has two distinct qualities of tone. In the upper and lower register it has a voice like a cow that has fallen into a pit, and in the middle register it sounds like a man with the croup shouting "fire" from a fourth story window. It is much used by composers for mournful, distracted effects, and in the opera of "La Sammambula" it is employed as the interpreter of a man calling down a dark alley for his lost dog. When the average man listens to the ravishing bassoon solo in the slow movement in the concerto for piano and orchestra, it insensibly makes him think of a tall woman, with her head tied up in an apron and her mouth full of clothespins, trying to hang up a fourteen feet sheet in a gale of wind. The flute is too familiar for the readers of this paper to reqire any detailed description. In the hands of the young man living in the next block its expressive, wailing notes are vaguely suggestive of a dog trying to crawl through a fence that is too close for him, assisted by another dog of greater weight and more irritable temperament. The double bass is the largest of the violin tribe. It is also the worst. The man who plays it is usually fat and always bald.

Nothing Left to Holler On.

An hour or so after the latest and last from Chicago yesterday afternoon, a policeman on Randolph street halted at the door of a saloon and asked the proprietor how he liked the nomination.

"I doan' care for bolitics any more," was the reply.

"Why, what's the matter? You were great'y excited yesterday."

"If I vhas den I vhas a fool. Vhen dot first ballot vhas daken I set up der peer for de Grant crowd, for I likes to sthand vhell mit der poys."

What Kind of a Worm is It.

The army worm is the larvæ of a moth called Leucania unipuncta, which is noctural in its habits. But one of West Chester's well-posted microscopists who had been examining the worms which are now working in the grain fields about there thinks that they are not true army worms. He finds that these worms are anatomically more like magnified cut worms than the army worms. They are marked like cut worms and have eyes like them. The true army worm has sixteen feet while the present pest has only twelve. The army worm cannot climb a perpendicular wall and can be turned by a furrow in the field, while these worms will even climb the side of a glass bottle. The true army worm is only an inch and three-quarters long, while these have been found full two and a half inches and in the older stage become hirsute or hairy like a catterpillar. Like the army worm they are only fond of grain in the milky state and about here, at least, the wheat is too near ripe to be injured.

KEYSTONE

Tire Tightener,

A new and useful invention, patented November 18, 1879, which obviates all the difficulties and expense heretofore connected in keeping your wagon, buggy, horse rake, and seed drill wheels in repair.

First. By using this machine you can tighten your wheels without the aid of a blacksmith, as it is simply a device to attach to the spokes to adjust the felloe back to the tire, where it originally belonged; then insert a leather washer on the tenon of the spoke between the spoke and the felloe, which keeps the felloe up tight against the tire.

Second. By this method you can tighten the tire without removing the wheel from the wagon, or the tire from the wheel.

Third. By using this machine you will not dish the wheel, burn and split the felloe, or overheat the tire, as is too often the case when done by the old method, as you have the wheel under perfect control to make it just as tight as you want it, not running the risk of more shrinkage than was allowed, and thus ruin the wheel.

Fourth. With this machine you can remove a broken spoke and spring in a new one without injury to the wheel.

Fifth. A wheel tightened by this method will last twice as long as one tightened by the old method.

Sixth. You can save half the price of the machine on one job alone, allowing nothing for the time and trouble of taking the wagon to the shop.

QUESTIONS

Occasionally asked by persons not fully understanding the merits of the machine:

Question. Does this machine work hard?
Answer. No; a boy from twelve to fifteen years of age can work it as readily as a grown person.
Question. How does this method of tightening tires affect the hub of the wheel?
Answer. It tightens the spokes in the hub, as the machine is fastened to the hub and has the same downward pressure as it has to raise, thus should a spoke be loose in the hub it forces it back to its place and tightens it.
Question. If the wheel be felloe-bound, how do you tighten it without sawing a piece out of the felloe, as it is done by the old method?
Answer. Simply by adjusting the felloe back to its original place, then put the washer under it and keep it there.
Question. Will not a wheel tightened by this method soon give way and become loose?
Answer. No; as it is evident that wood upon wood will not last as long as wood on leather, by placing a leather washer on the tenon of the spoke, it avoids friction and bruising of the wood, thus proving all for the machine that we claim for it.

Something to Laugh At.

Sharp practice—Learning to strap a razor.

When boys take the rod meekly—At fishing time

People that have hens to "shoo" seldom go to the cobbler.

A play is said to "run" when it stays a long time at one theatre.

"Mankind" said a preacher "includes women; for a man embraces woman."

Charles—"What did that spring suit cost you, Al?" Alfred—"Can't say, dear boy; haven't been sued for it yet."

There is one advantage in marrying a woman who hasn't a mind of her own; she can't forever be giving you a piece of it.

The grand secret of Russian valor—There's so much "itch" to their names it's no wonder they "come up to the scratch."

A son of the Siamese twins is achieving high honors in an eastern college, which leads a funny man to ask: "Why shouldn't he rise in the world? His father was well connected."

"Ma, lend me a pencil; I want to draw some ladies." "Draw some ladies! Why, Johnny, this is Sunday." "Well, I'll draw them in their Sunday clothes." Proposition declined with spanks.

A young man went into a restaurant the other day, and, remarking that "Time is money," he added that, as he had a half-hour to spare, if the proprietor was willing, he would take it out in pie.

They are expressing surprise at the success of a politician who had been everything. 'Oh, no wonder he gets rich,' said a wise observer, 'he has sold every one that bought him and saved the money.'

A slippery politician, on being informed that the leaders of his party threatened to throw him overboard, exclaimed, 'Let them do it if they dare, and I'll show 'em that I have strength enough to swim to the other side.'

'Shall I help you alight?' asked a young gentleman, addressing a nice, bouncing country girl who was preparing to leave a railway carriage. 'Thank you, sir,' sweetly replied the girl, 'but I don't smoke.'

Judge—'How comes it that you dared break into this gentleman's house in the dead of night?' Prisoner—'Why, Judge, the other time you reproached me for stealing in broad day. Am I not allowed to work at all.'

'Do you think a man can run a circus and be a Christian?' asked the serious man. 'Well, I don't know—yes.' 'Do you think Barnum, for instance, can go to heaven?' 'I think he has a good show,' was the rather equivocal reply.

"Mr. Ford has an abominable gait don't you think so?" "No, indeed; I think it is quite handsome, especially since it was painted." "Excuse me, but you don't understand me—I allude to his carriage." "Why, la me! he has no carriage; he rides in the hoss-cars."

A woman is the only human being who tries to catch two trains at once. When she is in a hurry to get to the railroad station you often see her reaching wildly for the end of her dress, which is meanwhile tripping her up and sweeping along in its tumultuous course all the loose dirt on the sidewalk.

Jean Baptiste announces to his mistress that he is about to leave her service. 'Well, if you had any intention of leaving your place you might have given me warning,' says the lady. 'How could I? I couldn't throw out the dirty water till I got the clean, and I only got the new place this morning.'

Maud, with much sympathy in her voice, 'Only fancy, mamma, Uncle Jack took us to a picture gallery, and there was a picture of a lot of early Christians, poor dears, who'd been thrown to a lot of lions and tigers, who were devouring them!' Ethel, with more sympathy, 'Yes, and mamma, dear, there was one poor old tiger that hadn't got a Christian.'

Waifs for the Ladies.

Brooklyn is to be heated by steam. Heretofore it has been heated by ministerial scandals.

Domestic bliss—kissing the maid of all work. Domestic blister—when a man's wife surprises him in the act.

"She isn't all that fancy painted her," exclaimed a rejected lover, "and worse than that, she isn't all that she paints herself."

Statistics say that there are about 1,700 female authors in France. Two-thirds of them are natives of the provinces, and one-third of Paris.

A crusty old bachelor says that love is a wretched business, consisting of a little sighing, a little crying, a little "dying," and a deal of lying.

A whisky flask exactly resembling a prayer book is the latest Sunday convenience. And yet some people argue that Christianity is a failure.

A little boy being told by his mother to take a powder she had prepared for him, "Powder, powder!" said he, putting on a roguish smile, "mother, I ain't a gun!"

The editor of a paper in Wisconsin referred to a gathering of ladies as a "scandal caucus," and now the fifty and odd females wont patronize a store which patronizes the editor.

Political Conventions, says the Herald, in their preliminary hullaballoo, are like circus advertisements. There are more prancing horses pictured on the fences than ever appear in the ring.

No wonder, says the *Free Press*t that Gen. Sherman's daughter didn', want a list of her bridal outfit published. She didn't have but fifty-two pairs of stockings to her name.

A contemporary prints a poem called "Gather Ripe Fruits, Oh Death." And that would be best. It is now that the small boy gathers the fruits before they are ripe, and Oh Death gathers the small boy.

Child of seven, before being brought into the drawing-room. Row heard outside room. Scream from child. Child in alto: "Tompany (company) or no tompany, I won't have my face washed with spit!"

Boston philosophy says: "If there were not so many bad men there would not be so many bad women;" and a Western philosopher adds: "If there were no people in the world the mosquitoes would have nobody to bite."

Ladies who wear sealskin sacks are very liable not to wear them, for in Belgium rabbit skins are successfully prepared to resemble sealskin, and thousands of rabbits are annually killed in England whose pelts go to Pelgium, and leave that country as genuine as sealskin.

Jane Gray of Palmo, Miss., had two ardent lovers, and made her choice between them. The rejected suiter was greatly cast down by his failure. Jane told him that he had no real reason for regret, as she had a twin sister who was so much like her that strangers could not distinguish any difference.

The latest rage among young ladies is to possess an old-fashioned spinning wheel for a parlor ornament. The desire to possess an old-fashioned washboard and tub as a kitchen ornament doesn't rage much among young ladies. They are about as handsome as a spinning wheel, but they are not so fashionable.

Enthusiasm for Hancock.

Whatever will be the effect of the Democratic boom on Saturday night for Hancock and English, the Cincinnati nominees, it must be said that the demonstration, looking at it from a Democratic standpoint, was a success, and particularly satisfactory to the party followers. As soon as the nominees of the Cincinnati convention were announced, Chairman Spangler, in whom the party has an energetic worker, immediately began to perfect his plans for a Democratic jubilee as an offset to the Garfield demonstration on the evening of the 17th, and, aided by his subordinates, succeeded in giving the ticket a very respectable sendoff. Men were sent out all over the county to give notice of the meeting and to urge their brother Democrats to turn out and help swell the crowd. Several of the towns visited responded by sending a delegation, but a great many more were expected than put in an appearance.

The decorations about the Court House yard, put up during the day, were of a very pleasing description. A large arch of evergreen was erected over the entrance gate, and over this a large banner bearing the inscription, "The people's choice for President, Winfield Scott Hancock; for Vice President, Wm. A. English." Flags and lanterns were also suspended from the limbs of the trees throughout the yard, and in the evening, when the grounds were illuminated by flaming torches and the glimmer of the lanterns, the spectacle was a brilliant one. By six o'clock the arrangements for the evening performance were about completed and everything in readiness for the opening of the ball. Shortly before eight o'clock the loud report of an anvil on Jail hill, which started a commotion among the country folks, announced that the festivities in honor of Hancock and English had commenced. Reservoir hill belched forth an answering salute, followed by a faint pop from Halfmoon. At eight o'clock the Hancock Club, about 100 men, with torches, formed before their club room, and, headed by the Mountain City band, marched out Water street to the turnpike, where the Pleasant Gap delegation, with brass band, was met.

The Milesburg and Bald Eagle Valley delegation was next received on Linn street, and after being assigned their position, the clubs reformed and marched out Linn to Allegheny street. As the procession neared the Court House, with bands playing and banners waving, the "batteries" on the hill started up afresh, sky-rockets whizzed through the air, and the crowds on the sidewalks yelled and cheered, especially the boys, to whom it no doubt seemed like a Fourth of July celebration.

The route of procession lay over Allegheny street to Bishop, out Bishop to Spring, out Spring to High, and up High to the Court House where the ranks were broken. The exercises were conducted in the yard in order to escape the heat of the court room, and to better accommodate those who desired to hear the speakers.

Chairman Spangler called the assemblage to order, stating the object of the meeting, and making a few opening remarks. The meeting was organized by the election of John A. Woodward, of Howard, as President, and for vice-Presidents, Hon. J. P. Gephart, of Bellefonte, Benj. Hunter, of Benner twp., Hon. J. F. Weaver, of Boggs, and Henry Noll, of Spring; Secretaries, Josepy W. Furey, of Bellefonte, and J. A. McClain, of Milesburg. On taking the chair the president addressed a few words to the audience, saying, in substance, that they had not assembled for the purpose of making any lengthy speeches, but to ratify, in a demonstrative manner, the nominations, and the principal object was to "whoop 'er up!" The first speaker of the evening was D. F. Fortney, Esq., who spoke with his usual earnestness, telling his Democratic friends that if they would stand firm and work with a will Hancock would go into the White House with a rush. One thing in particular he desired the Republican party to understand—that if their candidate was elected he would be inaugurated; that they had been cheated once out of their President, but did not propose to submit to it again.

At the conclusion of Mr. Fortney's speech music was called for, and while the members of the band were being hunted up, Major Forster availed himself of the opportunity to mount the platform and read a few congratulatory messages from prominent Democrats scattered over the county. He also read an extract from the Pittsburgh Commercial saying "that Hancock's reputation, like Garfield's, was unassailable," or words to that effect. This the Major offered as a huge joke, but the audience didn't see it, and failed to "whoop 'er up."

After music by the band Senator Alexander, in response to loud calls, took the platform. The Senator is a forcible talker and never fails to please a Democratic audience. He spoke for half an hour, alluding in brief to the history of his party. touched lightly on the "fraud" issue, and introduced several anecdotes which took well with the crowd.

Col. Blair was next called upon to take the platform. He spoke in strong terms of the corruptness of the party now in power, and assurred his followers that their standard-bearer, if elected, and he was confident he would be, would give the people a government they would not be ashamed of.

J. W. Gephart, Esq., wound up the speech making with the best address of the evening. He spoke with earnestness and spirit, wasted none of his ammunition, and retired with cheers.

At the conclusion of his speech three cheers were given for the ticket, and after more music by the bands the ratifiers were dismissed and the jolification was at an end. The meeting was conducted in an orderly manner throughout, and no disturbance of any kind occurred to interfere with the proceedings.—Morning News.

The Houtzdale Murder.

The Osceola Reveille gives the following additional particulars of the recent murder of Swedes at Houtzdale: "On Saturday evening a party of miners resorted to the house of Frank Cooper, in Houtzdale, where they indulged in sundry rounds of beer. Among the party were three Swedes, two of whom were pretty freely treated to beer by one of the other miners, and about 9 o'clock it was proposed that the party should go to a certain house up the road above town, for purposes not necessary to mention.

Before starting the Swedes loaned the other men some money, part of which was used in buying several bottles of whisky. They were all armed with pistols, and on the way to the log house, or returning from it after they had been there, one of the Swedes was induced to discharge all the barrels of his revolver. The man who asked him had a bottle of whisky which belonged to the Swede, and it appears from the testimony that they had some angry words about it. The Swede wanted "veesky," and the other man wanted it himself. Previously, one of the Swedes seeing that his butty was pretty drunk, took his watch away from him for the purpose of taking care of it. One of the other men then tried to get the watch, and putting the pistol to the Swede's breast threatened to shoot him if he didn't surrender it. The Swede, finding that he was in a bad crowd, left the party, and by that means saved his life. He hadn't gone far, however, until he heard pistol shots in the direction of the party he had just left.

After the other man, known to the party as the "little Swede," had emptied the barrels of his pistol, the "stranger," as the Swedes called him, fired at and hit the other Swede, described in the testimony as the "big Swede." This man then started to run down the road, and his friend, the "little Swede," called to him to stop or come back. He ran away, however, and soon heard another shot. This shot was fired at the "little Swede," who ran thirty-eight steps and fell to the ground. This was about 9:30 in the evening, and it is supposed the Swede died on the road side some time before 12 o'clock. Dave Hensel passed that way after the shooting, and thinking the man was drunk, dismounted from his horse and lifted the man from the gutter in which he was lying.

This is about the shape this case was in when Capt. Clark reached Houtzdale at 2:30 on Sunday afternoon. A man had been killed, another wounded, and the murdered man had been robbed. Nobody can tell anything about it. The murderers and robbers are unknown.

Boiling Springs.

Mr. Charles Mackey has been visiting at this place for a few days, the guest of Mrs. Harvey Mann.

Mr. A. Walter, cashier of the Millheim bank, and Mr. C. A. Sturges, of the same place, were the guests of J. N. Vanormer on Sunday last.

We notice that the Messrs. Mann are erecting an engine at their axe works in this place, which looks very encouraging, as the low water season has been a serious drawback for a number of years. With improved facilities, we hope to hear that Mann's axes are going out in large quantities to the utmost parts of the earth.

It is reported that the story in circulation here that James Montgomery, who slings the goose quil in Mann's store, was about to embark in the matrimonal boat, is all a hoax. Jim says he isn't that kind of a hairpin. W.

Another Victim.

As showing how unsuspecting people are victimized by sharpers who follow in the wake of circuses, we publish the following from an exchange, and request that everyone who is in the habit of attending such shows should read and ponder:

James Rawlins, of Colerain township, Bedford county, was made a victim of a little confidence game which was played upon him during the exhibition of a circus in Bedford recently, and he is out just $500 in money, without any value received, unless the quantity of experience which he purchased at that figure can be considered an equivalent. The story, as briefly told as possible, is that a stranger approached him on circus day, and made great demonstrations of friendship, representing that he was the nephew of a Cumberland banker. He was engaged in introducing a new kind of cloth for wearing apparel, and wanted an influential agent in Bedford county, to whom the "house," he was traveling for would pay $500 down. At this stage of the game a well dressed by stander appeared on the scene and also wanted an agency. The three gentlemen adjourned to a private room, when the operator said it was a rule of their "house" that an agent must show he was worth at least the amount stated before the sum could be advanced. Mr. Rawlins went out and drew $500 in bills, which he laid upon the table on his return for the sleek eyed individual to count. In the twinkle of an eye pepper was thrown into his face, blinding him for the time being, and the notes were gathered up by the villain, who hastily decamped, while the other, who was his partner, detained the old gentleman for a few minutes with a threat of killing him should he attempt to make an outcry. When leaving he told the victim that by calling at the Bedford bank on the following Tuesday he would find a check in his favor for $1,000, but up until latest accounts no such document had been placed on deposit.

—The Kane Blade, in its last issue, says a report is in circulation that another attempt was made last week to arrest the notorious Harry English in southern Elk county, which resulted more disastrously than the first attempt. Four men are said to have been shot, one of whom was killed. English is said to have been wounded severely in the leg and in one arm before effecting his escape. The man is determined to die game and will resist all attempts to capture him at any cost. His capture alive is almost an impossibility.

—There were thirteen wagons in market on Saturday morning and about the usual variety of produce offered. Of beef and veal there was, as usual, an abundant supply and of good quality. The supply of butter and eggs was sufficient to supply the demand, but vegetables were short. Two or three more wagon loads might very easily have have been disposed of. One marketman brought in a few buckets of huckleberries, which sold rapidly, and another one was kept busy dealing out lemons at 25 cents a dozen.

—The young ladies of Altoona presented the Vigilant Fire Company of that place with a handsome silk banner. Why don't the ladies of Bellefonte show their regard for one of our companies in a like manner? We assure them that either one of the companies would be delighted with such a gift, and appreciate it all the more as coming from the ladies.

—At the Democratic ratification meeting on Saturday night a boozy individual who had been cheering for Hancock made a mistake and sandwiched in a couple of yells for Garfield. He was promptly rebuked by his friends who had him in tow, and in order to make amends was obliged to set 'em up again all 'round.

—A number of farmers in Lancaster county have recently been losing their cattle from some disease which to them was unaccountable. They have now come to the conclusion that death had been caused by cattle eating grass that had been attacked by the army worm, which have appeared there in great numbers.

—There was a fall of rock and earth at the lime quarries of Alexander & Co., Monday at half-past 12 o'clock, noon. Fortunately, the workmen were off at dinner, and consequently escaping the terrible result that would have happened had it occurred half an hour earlier.

Before you go out of town on a ride or a pleasure jaunt be sure to fill your pockets with Harry Green's cigars. Then you can enjoy yourself and needen't be afraid to smoke in anybody's presence.

—Cayuga plaster, finely ground, the best in the market, only $7.00 per ton at ALEXANDER & Co's.

Milesburg Items.

Postmaster J. D. Miles in Milesburg we learn, has forwarded his resignation to the postoffice department to take effect July 1st. Mr. Miles has held the position for 12 years very acceptably to the department, and to the entire satisfaction of the community. His successor, whoever he may be, cannot be more agreeable and obliging than our worthy officer just resigned.

During the heavy storm on Friday afternoon last the house of William Miller, in Milesburg, was struck by lightning. One of the inmates of the house, a young lady, was stunned, though not seriously. The damage to the house was trifling.

James B. Proudfoot, our furniture man and undertaker, is also engaged in the ice business. He has a large lot of excellent ice, and has a contract with the P. R. R. Co., and is shipping a quantity to Tyrone every morning.

Our town has been lively with many strangers the past week, principally commercial men. Among them we notice J. B. Hahn and Charlie Weakly. Mr. Hahn was at one time a resident of our town.

Our old friend and retired farmer, Elias Zimmerman, of Boggs township, has this spring put out three acres of tobacco, near Wagner's mill, which is in a fine growing condition.

The three heavy men of Centre county (the commissioners) put in an appearance on last Wednesday here for the purpose of holding the appeals. As will be remembered they placed an additional per cent. on the value of all real estate in Boggs township; also 75 to 100 per cent. on the value of all labor. It is said the appeal was largely attended by the property-owners of Boggs for the purpose of having the ten per cent. stricken off, but the commissioners wouldn't hear to nothing, save a few trifling instances. Boggs township residents think they might as well have stayed at home and saved the county that day's expenses.

Some of the Democratic politicians of Milesburg and Boggs township are already traveling through the Bald Eagle ridges making known that Hancock and English are the Democratic candidates for the Presidency and Vice-Presidency. It is said they were asked when and where English was captured! PHIL.

—The Edinburg reviewers puffed themselves in the Review, puffed themselves in society, and were puffed by all the Whig coteries of London. All the best articles in the Review were picked out the instant the Review was published, and talked about. Lady Holland fished out the name of every new writer, and the day after the Review was out he was surprised with a card of invitation and a flattering note from Lord Holland. If he could talk as well as he wrote, he passed through the portals of Holland House to Bowood, Lord Lansdowne's seat, and if he could distinguish himself by his talk at Bowood, his fortune was made. All men talked there, especially literary men, and they were popular in proportion as they talked. Brougham talked. Mackintosh talked. Jeffrey talked. Coleridge talked. Rogers talked. It was all talk.

We don't propose to do any talking for the Review, but we want to say that here in Centre county everybody talks about the superior quality of Sechler & Co.'s groceries. The mechanic talks about them, the farmer talks about them, the lawyer talks about them, everybody talks about them, and simply because these goods are the purest and freshest in Centre county. At Sechler & Co.'s, Bush House block, is the popular place to buy.

—The Bellefonte Fencibles now meet at their armory in Bush's Arcade two nights in the week for drill practice. Captain Mullen is very desirous that the Fencibles should make a favorable appearance at the August encampment at Braddocks, and with that end in view is putting the men through a rigorous course of training. The men, too, take a deep interest in the organization, believing that in hard work only lies the secret of success.

—Mr. Al. Haupt met with a painful accident on Saturday morning while chopping kindling wood. By a misstroke the hatchet descended on the thumb of his left hand cutting through the flesh and into the bone, between the joints, and making an ugly wound.

—We would advise everybody to take things as easy as possible during this warm weather. Make up your minds to take everything just as it comes and make the most of it. It won't make a particle of difference in the weather if you fret and snarl from sunrise until sunset.

—We are now ready to receive orders for fall clothing, and will guarantee you a saving of 20 per cent. Don't fail to call early at the Bee Hive.

The Festival at the Wigwam.

The ice cream festival given by the ladies of the Presbyterian church for the benefit of the Sunday-school, on Thursday and Friday evenings, at the wigwam, was extensively patronized and proved a very gratifying success, financially as well as otherwise. The interior of the building was handsomely and tastefully decorated with flags and flowers by the ladies, which made the gathering all the more pleasant and agreeable. An attractive feature of the festival was a representation of "Rebecca's Well," presided over by one of the young ladies as "Rebecca." The affair, although simple in construction, was very popular and much admired. It was constructed of one or two plain boxes, surrounded with moss-covered rocks, the crevices being filled with wild plants and ferns. It differed, though, very materially from the original well in that ice-cold lemonade, instead of water, was drawn therefrom. Taken all in all the festival was one of the most successful every way the society has ever held. We did not learn the amount realized, but judge from the crowd in attendance both nights the receipts will foot up to a handsome sum.

High Priced Butter.

Buyers pay the highest price for "gilt-edged butter," but want every tub to be of an even, uniform color. They recommend Wells, Richardson & Co.'s Perfected Butter Color, as it is the most reliable known, and will give a perfect color. It received the only award at the International Dairy Fair for "superior purity, strength, perfection of color and permanence."

The Markets.

BELLEFONTE, June 29, 1880.

The farmers now being in the midst of harvest adds very much to curtail sales in our grocery and mercantile trade.

GRAIN.

There is nothing doing in the grain market of Bellefonte. The market is weak and prices are looking downward. The mills are amply supplied for their present wants, and the millers don't care to buy until their old stock is worked off.

PHILADELPHIA, June 28.

The wheat market during the past week has steadily declined in prices, to-day being the lowest for a long time. Receipts have been large, shipments fair, and the demand light, the market at the present time showing no indications, in either wheat or corn, of an improvement in prices. New wheat is coming in freely from Delaware and Maryland, in splendid condition, and as a general thing passes as No. 2 red, new inspection. Prospects continue favorable for the new crop, winter and spring.

In England there is a promise of an average crop, though the harvest will be late. France, better than last year; Spain, Algeria, Italy, Belgium, Hungary, favorable; Germany not very favorable; Russia also does not report favorably. Wheat, $1.16, old; $1.14@1.14½ new. Corn, 50½@51½c; No. 2 white Oats, 37@38c; No. 3 white, 36@37c; Rye, 88c. June wheat, $1.15 bid, $1.17 asked; July, $1 09¾ bid, $1.10 asked; July corn, 49½c bid, 50½c asked.

BEEF.—The curb market has done much in the way of furnishing good beef and mutton at catable prices. Beef roast, 8@10c; steak, 12½c. Choice mutton chop, 8c.

BUTTER.—The quality of butter does not improve, but prices are as low as the quality.

HAY.—The supply of hay is short, which commands about $20 per ton. Livery men think the farmers have no mercy on them.
